2023 HONOREES

Edmund de Waal is an English artist and writer recognized widely for his large-scale installations of porcelain vessels. Much of his work is about the contingency of memory: bringing particular histories of loss and exile into renewed life. Both his artistic and writing practice have broken new ground through their critical engagement with the history and potential of ceramics, as well as with architecture, music, dance, and poetry. De Waal uses his early training in Japanese ceramics to incorporate themes of diaspora, memorial, and materiality with his interventions and artwork. He shares Noguchi's faith in "the space around an object, or in non-material things," creating architectural interventions and site-specific installations that respond to particular environments. Also an acclaimed writer, de Waal is best known for his family memoir, The Hare with Amber Eyes: A Hidden Inheritance, published in 2010.

"I'm truly honored to be receiving the Isamu Noguchi Award. Noguchi has been a constant presence in my life since I first went to Japan over forty years ago," says Edmund de Waal. "I was a pilgrim to the many places in which he worked and since then feel that I have traveled in his footsteps. His relationship with the materials of clay and stone and his sense of place have informed and delighted me. Noguchi's encounters with traditional skills were respectful: he took them seriously enough to change and renew them with vigor. I am a potter, I work with the oldest craft in the world and I try to renew my art in a similar way."

Theaster Gates is an American, Chicago-based contemporary artist and social innovator focusing on space theory, land development, sculpture and performance. Gates has been a pioneer in the field of social practice, combining strategies of urban planning, object making, and performance. His work exemplifies Noguchi's belief that the purpose of art is to make us more human. In establishing the Rebuild Foundation — a community-based non-profit for art, cultural development, and neighborhood transformation — he has created a platform to promote other artists and foster community revitalization.

"The Isamu Noguchi award is one of the highest honors I could receive," says Theaster Gates. "The complexity and purity of Noguchi's practice, and the ambition of his public works, has always been true north for me. The philosophies, traditions and ways of working that underpin Noguchi's practice continue to act as pillars and anchors of truth for me. I am humbled to receive this recognition and to be recognized amongst my colleagues Hanya Yanagihara and Edmund de Waal."

Hanya Yanagihara. Photo: Jenny Westerhoff

Hanya Yanagihara is an American, New York-based novelist, editor, and writer. The author of three novels, Yanagihara's work tackles topics that are complicated at times, dealing with reckonings that make us human. Her writing is suffused with rich descriptions that showcase her curiosity for culture. In her current role as the longstanding editor in chief of T: The New York Times Style Magazine, Yanagihara has produced prolific issues rooted in global perspectives of art history, fashion, design, craft, and travel. Echoing Noguchi – who believed in the power of the written word and continuously returned to his travels and particular places in time for inspiration and guidance – Yanagihara's work reflects a kaleidoscopic perspective.

"It's a profound honor to receive this Award, particularly as I've long been inspired by Noguchi's work as both an artist and a politically engaged citizen," says Hanya Yanagihara. "I've always admired how his dedication to craft intersected with his sense of cultural and personal responsibility, in a way that had real consequences for him. As an East Coast-based Japanese American resident, he was exempted from Executive Order 9066, which placed over 120,000 Japanese Americans – most of them American citizens – in prison camps. But in 1942, he voluntarily committed himself to one of those camps, Poston, with idealistic hopes of creating a more humane environment."

ABOUT THE NOGUCHI MUSEUM

Founded in 1985 by category-defying artist Isamu Noguchi (1904–1988), The Isamu Noguchi Garden Museum (now known as The Noguchi Museum), was the first museum in the United States to be established, designed, and installed by a living artist to show their own work. Located in Long Island City, Queens, the Museum itself is widely viewed as among the artist's greatest achievements. Holding the world's largest collection of Noguchi's works, it features open air and indoor galleries in a repurposed 1920s industrial building and an outdoor sculpture garden. Accompanying the permanent installations placed by Noguchi, the Museum presents temporary exhibitions exploring themes in Noguchi's work, his milieu and collaborators, and his enduring influence today among contemporary practitioners across disciplines. It exhibits a comprehensive selection of Noguchi's material culture, from sculpture, models, and drawings to his personal possessions, and manages the artist's archives and catalogue raisonné. Through its rich collection, exhibitions, and programming, the Museum facilitates scholarship and learning for audiences of all ages and backgrounds.
